TRUMPH FOR THE EAST

It is often true that it takes a long, long time to bring the past up to the present—Franklin, D. Roosevelt commenting on the re-nomination of Senator Ellison D. Smith in South Carolina.

There is no doubt about it, the re-nomination of Ellison D. Smith in South Carolina is a triumph for the past. And why not?

In our past, our ancestors that we should turn back upon it, refusing either to cherish and preserve the traditions which have stood the test of time or to profit by the mistakes of our people.

It is well to guard against a slavish conformity with all ideas and customs that are old and just because they are old. And we would do well to take note of Santayana's admonition that those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it.

But there is much more danger in this brand of modernism that rejects the high and worthy and welcomes what is new with uncritical zeal.

We note that Georgia's primary campaign is assuming the high and ardent fervor of a camp meeting and it may be that South Carolina's revolt against modernism in government may be tinged with the nostalgic loyalty to antique ideology. "The old time religion—It wasn't good for father, was good enough for mother; it is good enough for me."—Tallahassee Democrat.

WE WILL PAY FOR OUR FILING

The Daily Alternative to Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal so far presented to the American people is bigger and more frequent violations of public morals. The Republicans have no program and neither do the so-called conservative Democrats. There is the Townsend Plan and other union plans, the majority of which involve giving away money in prodigious amounts. Colorado is trying a pension plan of $45 a month to elderly people and California is about ready to adopt a similar proposition. Now, it will probably make Colorado look pretty niggardly. Everything of course, must be bigger and better in California.

As it looks at present, the only thing which will be able to stop the handout business will be the laws of economics. Now, it has started, we shall probably go crazy for a while, until we bump our heads against the laws of economics. When the money runs out, the spending will have to quit. None of the politicians, not even the Republicans, will have the courage or the ability to stop it. In fact, the majority of the people do not want it stopped.

After we have started our filing, there will come the hangover and then a sober working out of all the really fine things which have been initiated for the aged, the unfortunate, the blind and the poor in recent years. —Delray Beach News.

THE CABINET KNOWS BEANS

The "Cabinet" cabinet knows beans—beans—at least to the extent of not permitting purchases of more of this useful legume on credit for state institutions while some 200,000 pounds of the pellet are stored at Railroad prison.

The cabinet shows some sense. It has handled the bean situation nicely. However, we cannot avoid the speculation that there are other "beans" in the other "cabinet" in the state capital structure if any effort were made to find them and sufficient courage were at hand to compel their use before further supplies are obtained on the state's already wobbly check account.

Two hundred thousand pounds of beans sounds like a lot of feed. The frequency with which they are served in all institutions, whether the private boarding school or the state penitentiary, makes it certain that the supply will not last long. Nevertheless, the humble little vegetable makes a bit of Florida financial history. It has demonstrated that the cabinet can find ways and means of paying down on state purchases if state officials will only look around a bit and find out what the state has on hand and put it to use. —Miami Herald.

The Everglades National Park when established, will attract as many visitors as any one of our other national parks. Ernest F. Coe stated during the International Civic club's annual good-will broadcast over WJUM last week. He estimated the number of annual visitors would exceed a half million.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Kay.

Clearing out a desk drawer the other day I came across an old circular prepared by a citrus nursery company to promote the sale of a new type of orange which was given origin of "The Box Fruit." It was printed about 15 years ago. The concern that issued it has long since disappeared from existence. Throughout the state may be found here and there trees of this particular variety. If there are any, however, I have entirely escaped my notice.

However, the circular was an interesting piece of sales literature. The fruit illustrated in full color was certainly inviting and if one were to read that circular today with no citrus experience or knowledge of the industry, they probably would find themselves eager to plant an orange grove in Florida, with nothing to worry about as far as the future was concerned except how to beat the market.

And I'm telling you, turning from that Pollyanna circular to look at the citrus situation in Florida today, one can only feel let-down. If conservative estimates are correct, we are preparing to enter another chaotic era. The statistics show that fruit that even the statisticians could not lay end to end and get any kind of intelligent answer out of it.

In spite of the fact that Florida growers have been "cooperating" for thirty years or more, there is still a feeling of more individual interests rather than a group that is at any time in our history. What we need is to need in the citrus industry in Florida more than anything else is for somebody to write a book on "How Citrus Growers Can Help Each Other." Get Along With Buyers, Shippers and Politicians.

They tell us our one great need is organization, but if you ask me, we've been over-organized for years. We've spent so much time "organizing" we ain't had time for anything else. We've had Growers Committees, Growers Leagues, Growers Exchanges, Growers Cooperatives, Growers Associations, Growers Commissions and Growers this and that, with dues and assessments, commissioners, directors, managers, coordinators and what-have-you. I tell any Florida citrus grower who hasn't belonged to at least a dozen such groups and helped to finance and promote a lot of others is mighty hard to find.

When we add to the various group organizations the various shipper and other allied groups, boy I mean we got as fine and complete an assortment of high class "organizations" as can be found anywhere, and at the same time we find the industry as a whole "unorganized." As a selfishness, greed, politics and personal interests can make it.

One outfit wants a marketing agreement—another doesn't; those that favor an agreement can't agree on what kind. Some think fruit should be "color added" while you will find others who are bitterly opposed to it. Some want more advertising, others don't want any. So altogether we have just naturally "organized" ourselves into one sweet helluva mess.

Just help matters, the citrus commission faces a possible shake-up this month when the terms of five members expires September 10th. They serve beyond that date subject to the appointment of a successor and Governor Ford has had much time lately to give a whole lot of thought to the question of "Successors." But men don't function with any degree of efficiency or enthusiasm when they serve with the well known axe hanging over 'em. So if the changes are to be made they should be made "quickly" or the commissioners whose terms expire should be reappointed at once and thereby be placed in a position to give their best to the industry.

Growers organizations ambitious to "knock ships' ears" and find themselves confronted with shipper's organizations bent upon "keeping the growers in line" and all this is being off with an inharmonious political situation that breeds only doubt and suspicion and leaves little opportunity for intelligent constructive advancement.

Because it has neglected to properly publicize its aims and accomplishments there is doubt in the minds of many that the Citrus Commission is justified and it is possible an effort will be made to dissolve it at the coming legislative session. The commission, however, is needed as the spokesman for the industry. Believed of political pressure and given the full support and cooperation of all citrus interests, it can perform a valuable and helpful service. Con-

The world may owe a man a living, but that doesn't mean he should expect the grocery man to provide it.

The first car of Sea Island cotton to be shipped from Florida this season was reported from Ocala by A. R. Stratford, county agent of Marion county.

Instant industry strike and marketing effort will not help in moving and marketing our treasured crop. That the industry as a whole can get together for the welfare of all seems too much to hope for, but unless it does the coming season offers little hope to the man who has his all wrapped up in citrus.

Excellent Film Booked Sunday

"Kidnapped" the story which Robert Louis Stevenson is said to have considered his best, comes to Belle Glade spectacularly produced by Darryl F. Zanuck, with a cast of 5,000, and pretty much of the pick of 20th Century-Fox's "hit-making" stars.

Unlike several other Stevenson stories, "Kidnapped" never before has appeared in either silent or sound films—something of a record. In its debut, however, the stars, director and supporting cast appeared to have been assembled with a lavish hand from the members of the Everglades theatre Sunday and Monday.

Every person conversant with so much as high school English has thrilled to the adventure in "Kidnapped," so the picture is destined to meet a host of familiar friends.

It will be these "friends" who will remember that the story has little or no "feminine interest" but being chiefly the tale of the escapades of Alan Breck and David Balfour (portrayed on the screen by Warner Baxter and Freddie Bartholomew).

Pundits may try, therefore, to quarrel with Hollywood's introduction into the story of a Jean MacDonald, Highland lass who becomes enamored of Alan Breck. The role is portrayed by the outstandingly vivacious and beautiful screen discovery, Arleen Whelan.

It is interesting to note, then, that the motion picture people have no less a precedent than Stevenson himself, for allegedly "tampering" with the facts. He admits his inspired and beautiful historical facts in writing the book.

"If I were honest to confess at once how little I am touched by the desire for accuracy. This 'Kidnapped' is no furniture for a scholar's library, but a book."

At Hollywood has taken liberties it has only to paraphrase the author of the book from which it made its film:

"This is no furniture for a scholar's library, but a triumphant piece of motion picture entertainment, lavishly done."

The stellar cast of "Kidnapped" includes C. Aubrey Smith, Reginald Owen, John Carradine, Nigel Bruce, Miles Mander, Ralph Forbes and H. B. Warner.

The attraction at the Prince theatre in Pahokee on Sunday and Monday will be "Mother Carey's Chickens" with Anna Shirley, Ruby Keeler and James Ellison.

The number of retail and wholesale dealers in alcoholic beverages in Florida totaled 9,555 for the calendar year of 1937. Records of the Bureau of Internal Revenue disclose. This was a decline from the 9,609 listed for the fiscal year of 1937. However the number of dealers in malt liquors (ale and beer to you) increased to 4,450 in 1938 over 1,738 in 1937.

100 Tons Glades Dried Beans Must Be Eaten Before Cabinet Will Buy More

TALLAHASSEE, Sept. 6—The cabinet decided today inmates and employees of state institutions should eat about 200,000 pounds of dried beans before there are any more charge account purchases of peas or beans.

Treasurer W. V. Knott told the state hospital, reported that institution used 9,000 pounds of beans a month from the Ballou Glade supply and could use more.

D'Alenberts was instructed to check up on the total supply of beans, syrup and other farm products at Raiford, so that the stuffs may be used at institutions wherever

* Attorney General George C. Gibbs presided at the cabinet meeting in the absence of Gov. Fred P. Cone and Secretary of State Robert A. Gray.

"I'm opposed to buying any more beans on credit while we have these on hand," said Knott and his associates agreed.

The dried beans were produced at the Belle Glade prison farm, and sent to Raiford for storage after another 300,000 pounds were distributed to institutions. Dan D'Alemberte, purchasing agent for
